Small Business Innovation Research/Technology Transfer Program

National Institute of Minority Health and Health Disparities (NIMHD)

The National Institutes of Health's Small Business Innovation Research/Small Business Technology Transfer Program (SBIR/STTR) is one of the largest early-stage life sciences investment programs open to a wide variety of applicants.

Within NIH, NIMHD has a mission focus on "scientific research to improve minority health and reduce health disparities." NIMHD's goal for its SBIR/STTR portfolio is to support the private-sector commercialization of innovations that address health disparities for minority communities. The program also helps drive commercialized solutions in furthering the NIH's health disparities research objectives, specifically in NIH health disparities identified populations (African Americans/Blacks/Asian Pacific Islanders, Native Americans, Rural, Socioeconomic, Latinos, and Gender/Sexual Orientation).
